

FOREMAN TRAINING FOR IRONWORKERS

DO YOU NEED FOREMAN TRAINING?

The Ironworkers offer a 24-hour very effective course entitled Foreman Training for Ironworkers. If you are a foreman or an employer and answer “No” (or even “Maybe”) to any of these questions, then you should request that the foreman training course be conducted so that you or your foremen can participate.

Questions for Ironworker Foremen and Employers	Yes	No	Maybe
Are you satisfied with your understanding of the foreman’s role in the construction process?
Are your team building skills acceptable?
Are you communicating well on the job site?
Are you confident when speaking to your employer?
Are you satisfied with how you deal with job site problems?
Do you know how to process problems through your employer and general contractor?
Are you satisfied with your payroll recordkeeping methods?
Are you confident when dealing with changes in the work?
Are your systems for tracking deliveries and drawings working well?
Are you comfortable dealing with a diverse employee group?
Are you comfortable with the legal implications of being a foreman?
Do you have scheduling methods that always work for you?
Are you comfortable with your knowledge of dealing with accidents?
Do you understand the foreman’s role in OSHA relationships?
Do you have effective quality management techniques for field work?
Are you satisfied with how you deal with inspectors and architects?
Do you take JATC upgrade or refresher courses to keep current?
Are you comfortable dealing with changing trade technologies?

For more information on the Foreman Training for Ironworkers course, contact:
